Learn your ZBCs! Discover the truth about Bellysmurps! Bring a real bear to Teddy Bear Day! (Hey, it's just another normal day at school!) Yep, all the secrets of life in the classroom are hilariously revealed in this fun and honest collection of 59 school poems—written especially for and about kids in Grades K to 3. These verses all happily tumbled out of the 'rhymy' mind of renowned children's poet (and former kid and teacher) Ted Scheu, and are ready for you to enjoy right now! And Peter Lourie's 'wow' photographs are guaranteed to knock your smock off! Ted Scheu continues to be the top children's poet when it comes to capturing, in humorous rhyming verse, the true 'soul' of the school-age child. Written in the first person, Scheu's poems express all the joys and concerns, the rhythms and the twists, the truths and the imaginings of children. In this collection, he has turned his voice to slightly younger-aged kids, (mostly K-3) as they navigate the halls of school each day. This collection is meant to be read to and by young readers—as it lights up their 'laughers'. Poem titles include, "My Mirror Really Likes Me," "Hooray for PJ Day," "My Pencil Stinks at Spelling," "Bellysmurp," and of course, "Now I Know My ZBCs." Here's what Bobbi Katz, renowned children's poet, says about "Now I Know My ZBCs" "Here comes a generous bundle of rhymes ready to please the ears of young learners, as well as those of their teachers. Don't be surprised if toes start tapping to the rhythms!" And Kalli Dakos, award-winning children's poet wrote: "Ted's poems capture the spirit of childhood in this wonderful collection. With insight and humor, he gives a voice to the joys and challenges of elementary school life today. Students will love the wide range of topics and the author's ability to enter their world with understanding, creativity and compassion. They may be inspired to write poems of their own!"
