Journeys Through Bookland: 10-Volume Set Charles H. Sylvester

This incredibly comprehensive set was produced in the early 1920s to be a complete review of children's literature. Described as "A new and original plan for reading applied to the world's best literature for children," the ten-volume set contains fairy tales, fables, lullabys, nursery rhymes, and most of the great literature in well-done adaptations for children. Includes classics like AEsop, Shakespeare, Charles Lamb, Edgar Allen Poe, Mother Goose, and pretty much all the great writers of American and European literature, exposition, and poetry. Each volume is illustrated with dozens and dozens of black & white, 4-color, and full-color drawings and illustrations. Volume 10 is a "user's guide," which explains how to use and teach the stories in the rest of the set. This set was sold door-to-door in mostly rural areas for homeschooling purposes in the 1920s. Complete sets are now extremely rare, and virtually none survive today.
